

4-H Volunteer Connection Sept 27 - 30

Focused Track Options

Providing 3 core and 4 elective workshops with a focus

Connecting with Kids in the Kitchen

Explore new ideas to work with youth in food prep skills. Sessions vary from innovative teaching with culinary arts to fundraising with kids and food.

Participants will explore plans to connect foods activities across the program, teaching techniques and even a few new recipes.

Seeing Science Connections

Connect quickly to the science in our everyday living as participants explore science in all of our 4-H programs.

Engaging with ideas of natural, biological, and technical sciences, participants will quickly see science as an exciting component of any 4-H activity.

Connecting Creative Arts to Purpose

If your passion is creating connecting arts and purpose in 4-H is for you.

Sessions include hands-on creative arts from drawing and painting to clay and creations. Along with the creations themselves, participants will explore how to design experiences for all ages that connect learning and the creative process.

Connecting Health to Better Living

Engage with others as you explore strategies to incorporate healthy living in 4-H activities and events. Learn ideas that explore all aspects of Health as our pledge. From movement to choices, healthy living brings in innovative ideas to add to your existing programs and launch others as well.

Mastering Plant & Garden Connections

Connecting kids to the outdoors, plants and gardens are the perfect combinations of learning and fun.

Spend time exploring everything from Jr Master Gardener experiences to working with school and community gardens. Whether your thumb is as green as clover or you're just learning, sessions are planned to get you growing in your knowledge of kids, plants, and soils.

Connecting Camp to Learning

4-H Camp is a rich tradition, and this session explores opportunities to build engaging experiences for whatever camping you enjoy. Activities include those for day and overnight camps, connect with a variety of ages, and engage participants' exploration to take your camping experiences to the next level.
